

Prevailing Styles in Shoes

In all lines of wearing apparel, whether it be for men or women, there are new styles created to make those of the previous season look out of date and behind the times. There are bound to be innovations, otherwise the industry would not thrive. A man will discard a pair of shoes (although they may be perfectly good for several months of service) because the style is not just up to "snuff." It is a fact that shoe styles for spring have undergone many changes. In many instances those changes have been quite radical; in others not so noticeable.

FEW CLOTH TOPS

There is to be a lack of cloth tops this spring. The predictions made by many of those well versed in the shoe world, that the popularity of cloth tops would be short and limited, seems to have come true. Nothing can remain a favorite very long, no matter what it is, if it is overdone, and that is what is shortening the life of the cloth-top shoe.

Unquestionably cloth tops were "done to death." Everybody wore them; every bootery showed; every price, quality, color and fabric was represented. It was a craze—one that lasted for about three years and one that seems doomed to die this season. Cloth tops were shown first in only high priced lines, and those that will be displayed this season will be shown in the higher priced lines almost exclusively.

GRAIN TOPS, COMING IN

Among the leading style considerations for this spring are grain tops, or contrast leathers. They are the products of the brains of crafty shoe designers who were seeking something "different" and something to take the place of cloth tops. They have bright prospects of becoming this season's favorite innovation; yet they are apt to die the death of their preceding favorite because of over-popularity.

These contrast colored shoes will be shown mainly in the early spring lines. You will see such creations as a light tan upper over a black bottom, light tan over mahogany, mahogany over light tan, gun metal over patent leather, grain leather over box calf and numerous other clever novelties that seem certain to win a place in the hearts of discriminating dressers.

CUSTOM LAST AGAIN

No matter how hard shoe designers try they never seem to accomplish a style that is a fitting substitute for the custom or English last. For the past eight or ten years the custom last with its long receding toe and generally flat outline has stood out pre-eminent over all others. The custom last is not a novelty. It is sensible, serviceable, distinctive, cultured, refined, graceful. It was created with sound judgment—for not only is it stylish but it is the best fitting last for most men. The custom last has enjoyed many prosperous seasons already and will undoubtedly enjoy many more. Nothing as yet has shown its appearance that will put the flat custom last out of the ranks.

MANY PERFORATED TIPS

Last spring and fall there was a slight evidence that perforated tips were coming "back to life." A few of the higher class shoe marts displayed them and they met with the approval of men who take to advance styles. This spring they will be shown broadcast in most every price line and in many different leathers.

There will be scores of seamless and wing top oxfords in blacks, tans, mahogany, tobacco browns and various other shades.

RUBBER SOLES COMING BACK

Rubber soled oxfords had just about one season of real popularity. They were bulky, heavy, hot and wore very poorly. But this season they are coming back in a new form. The rubber is strong, light in weight and will outwear many leathers. Another good quality they possess is that they won't slip on rainy days as the others did. Unquestionably rubber shoes will be worn extensively, especially by the younger set.

FOR OUTING WEAR

Outing shoes have undergone very slight changes, although it is predicted that there will be a much greater demand for them. Canvas, Palm Beach and light tan Palm Beach will perhaps be shown more than others. In the better class of goods, white buck with white rubber soles predominate.

For the sportsman practically nothing new will be shown. For golf the spike and half-rubber soled shoes remain. For tennis, the "sneaker," or the same old style tennis shoe seems still to be the best suited for that branch of sport. For baseball the same styles as before will be shown.

DANCING SHOES

That the dancing craze is simmering out is perhaps best proven by the lack of new dancing shoe creations. The low cut pump in patent and dull leathers again reigns supreme. The rubber sole oxford and pump will also be used for dancing to a great extent.

METRIC SYSTEM USED.

LONDON, March 29.—One of the changes brought about in the English habits by the war is the effect it is having in popularizing the metric system of weights and measure. The annual report of the chief inspector of weight and measures in London, just issued, shows that he was called upon to give official approval to 33,000 metric weights and measures during 1915, whereas in the previous year the number was only 1,700.

SIZE IS LIMITED.

VIENNA, March 29.—The Hungarian authorities now limit the size of newspapers, according to their price, says a Budapest dispatch to a local labor paper. Papers which sell at one cent may not use more than six pages of ordinary size, while two cent papers may use from eight to twelve pages. No newspaper may print more than twelve pages at a single issue.

THIRST SAVES LIFE.

EL PASO, Tex., March 29.—Thirst saved the life of William Brock, the ten-year-old son of Dr. L. M. Brock, a physician. The lad, sick with measles, yielded to the call of thirst and arose for a drink. As he left the bed a boulder crashed through the roof and demolished the bed. The boulder had been propelled by a blasting at a reservoir site nearby.
